Workplace Violence: Recognition, Prevention and Response

Presented by

Lt. Chris Martin, City of Brewer Police Department

Nearly 2 million American workers report having been victims of workplace violence each year. Unfortunately, many more cases go unreported. The truth is, workplace violence can strike anywhere, anytime, and no one is immune. We will take a look at the following areas of workplace violence:

- Define workplace violence.
- Recognize behavior that may be warning signs of potential violence and indicators of domestic violence.
- Recognize the importance of situational awareness and how it applies to detecting and responding to potential danger.
- Identify circumstances and situations in the workplace.
- List the immediate action steps to be taken by an employee or manager.
- Identify general strategies to prevent workplace violence.
