Maine Small Business Development Centers (Maine SBDC)

Program Snapshot

Maine SBDC provides one-on-one business counseling to Maine's small business community at no cost to potential or existing Maine businesses.

Maine SBDC Business Counselors are qualified small business professionals, who have diverse educational and business experiences. Many hold MBA's and /or have owned and operated their own businesses. Often they bring diverse corporate experience to bear on seeking solutions for small business, especially in the areas of marketing, management and operations.

The Maine SBDC program helps build and strengthen small businesses through business advising, training and educational resources. Certified business advisors provide guidance on topics such as business feasibility, business plan development, capital acquisition, financial management, marketing and sales, e-commerce, customer service, personnel management, small business strategic planning and more.

The Maine SBDC is a program of the U.S. Small Business Administration, the Maine Department of Economic and Community Development and the University of Southern Maine. Accredited by America's Small Business Development Centers, the Maine SBDC operates a network of service centers in partnerships with the Androscoggin Valley Council of Governments, CEI and Northern Maine Development Commission. Their experienced advisors are certified by the New England Professional Development group (NEPD).
